I feel your should go very easy on Microsoft and settle this case. Any further litigation/punitive damages toward Microsoft would only slow down the technology growth sector and would further slow down the world as a whole. They have been instrumental in creating technology innovations and developing the use of the internet.

AOL would not be where it is today if Microsoft had not been around.
There would not be millions of computer users.
Libraries would not have internet resources.

We are at a turning point in history and only you can do the right thing.
